Over 19,900 health professionals proudly hold the Certified Diabetes Care and Education Specialist (CDCES) credential.

33% are under the age of 40 (and growing!)

Earning the CDCES Credential Enhances Confidence and Credibility*

- 97% say certification provides personal and professional growth and accomplishment
- 87% believe the credential helps to increase their marketability
- 92% said certification enhances their confidence
- 97% value their credential
- 95% believe the certification enhances their credibility
- 90% feel that the credential sets them apart from their peers

Employers Value Certification*

When hiring and promoting, employers report that they prefer to hire or promote a CDCES

- 70% of employers say the certification is a beneficial credential
- 73% of employers feel the marketplace values certification

Over 1,200 newly certified health professionals have become certified each year for the last five years

Earn the credential that will propel your career in diabetes care and education by providing recognition, credibility and increasing your marketability.

"Every CDCES that I have met at local and national meetings are so excited to share their ideas; it is like one big family who really cares about treating people with diabetes and helping each other to do better in our careers. How can someone not be excited to join such a group!"

- Julie Stading, PharmD, CDCES, Creighton University, Eagle, NE

Visit: www.cbdce.org and socialize with us on ✔️LinkedIn

*Note: The Certified Diabetes Care and Education Specialist (CDCES) certification was formerly known as the Certified Diabetes Educator (CDE) certification. The organization that administers the credential has also changed its name from NCDBE to CBDCE - Certification Board for Diabetes Care and Education.

2017 Value of Certification Survey